

TOURISTS ARRIVE DUSTY BUT HAPPY

Escort of Automobiles Meet the Visitors Near Brownstown and Accompany Them Here.

FEAST OF MELONS ENJOYED

Motorists More Than Pleased With The Reception and Sing Praises of Seymour.

Covered with dust and dirt as the result of their long run, one hundred and twenty tourists, participants in the Four States tour, arrived in Seymour about 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Although they have spent many long hours in their cars during the past few weeks, the members of the party were smiling and happy and more than satisfied with the results of their long journey.

According to the plans as adopted by the committee appointed by the committee appointed by the Commercial Club, a number of local automobilists left the city shortly after 1 o'clock today and started towards Brownstown to meet the visitors. The first machine in the escort carried a large American flag, and the tourists were given a greeting several miles east of Brownstown that they will long remember.

The gasoline caravan left Louisville about 9 o'clock this morning, and although the original route would take them through Scottsburg, they followed the suggestions of the Seymour committee and came by the way of Salem, Vallonia and Brownstown. All along the way they were greeted by the people of those towns and are more than pleased with the receptions which were given them in southern Indiana.

The big Nyberg Six motor truck and the truck of the Service Motor Car Company, which left Louisville several hours in advance of the others, were the first to arrive in Seymour. On account of the weight of the cars and because the trucks are not able to travel as rapidly as the other automobiles over the rough roads, the travelers believed that it would be more advisable to start in advance of the party. On the Nyberg Six was a large pipe organ, and during their stay in Seymour a recital was given.

The Service Truck, entered in the Four States Tour, by the Service Motor Car Co., of Wabash, Indiana, is proving one of the most popular attractions of the Tour. Hundreds of interested spectators surround this truck everywhere, desirous of seeing a truck operated without gears and a lot of complicated machinery. A single control lever operates this car forward or backward no gear shifting necessary, which usually confuses the operator, nor any mistakes that an operator might make, can in any way materially injure this car.

About 2 o'clock the pilot car, a great western make, close behind the confetti car, a Haynes, reached the city and scattered the confetti along the route which was to be taken by the other members of the party. At every turn along the road a red arrow was placed pointing in which direction the tourists should go in order to

NEW HOME READY FOR OCCUPANCY

Business of Seymour National Bank Will Be Conducted From Modern Quarters After Today.

INTERIOR IS VERY ATTRACTIVE

Every Department Arranged So As To Afford Greatest Convenience To Officials and Patrons.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon the Seymour National Bank will close its doors for the last time in its old building and beginning with the banking hours tomorrow morning, the business of that institution will be conducted from its fine, modern new building at the corner of Chestnut street and St. Louis avenue. The actual transfer of assets will be made tonight and everything will be in readiness Thursday morning. The bank's new home is one of the finest in southern Indiana and is modern in every detail.

The building is as fire proof as possible to construct it and has been arranged in such a manner as to afford the greatest convenience for the officials and the patrons. The bank has been furnished in mahogany with a marble floor and white marble wainscoting around the walls.

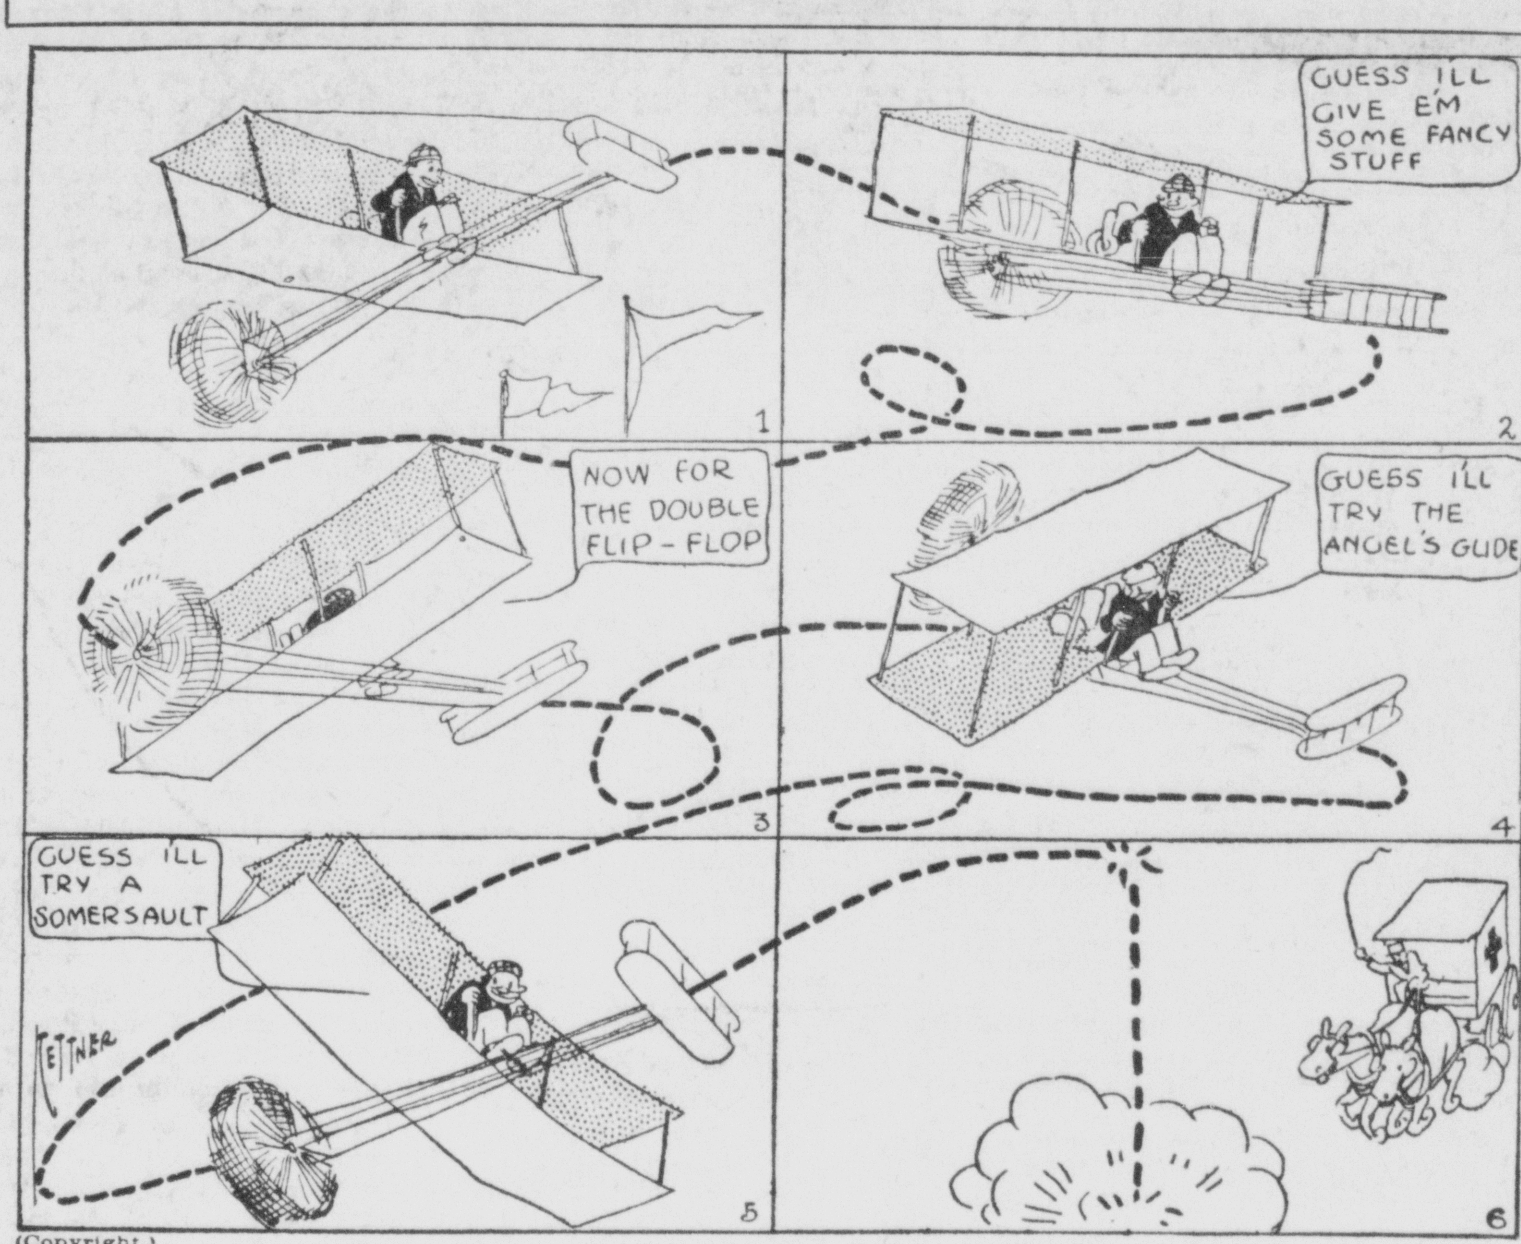

To the right of the main entrance is the president's consultation room which has been furnished in a very attractive and elaborate manner. Adjoining this apartment on the west is the president's desk and next to this stands the desk of the cashier. Apartments for the teller and bookkeepers have been arranged within the cages and are complete in every detail. Two large tables have been placed in the corridor for the convenience of depositors and patrons who desire to use them for correspondence or in checking up their accounts. Marble desks have been placed along the wall at the most advantageous positions. At the rear of the corridor a directors' room has been built and is furnished in grey oak. This room will be thrown open to the citizens and the farmers for committee meetings and other assemblages free of charge. The department will also be used for the meetings of the bank directors.

A large copper tablet has been placed upon the wall stating that the Seymour National Bank received its original charter in 1891 and giving the date of the erection of the new building. Upon the tablet appears the names of H. C. Johnson, president, Lynn Faulkner, vice-president, J. S. Mills, cashier and J. G. Laupus, J. M. Shields, James Honan, Lynn Faulkner and H. C. Johnson, directors.

A new vault has been constructed in the building and is one of the strongest made. It is equipped with an automatic time lock upon the main door and also upon the money vault. A department for safety boxes has been arranged which is large enough to accommodate four hundred such boxes.

The building is one of the finest in Seymour and as most of the work has been done by local contractors, the structure is quite a compliment to them. Niemeyer and Rockstroh were given the general contract. Short and Kaufman the brick and cement work, W. E. Colgrove the stone work, Charles Hirtzel the painting, Henry Loertz the decorating, W. C. Bevins and Company the plumbing and heat, Dievot Safe and Lock Company of Canton, Ohio, the safe, and the Robert-Mitchell Furniture Company of Cincinnati, Ohio, the furniture and fixtures.

The decorating in the interior is especially attractive and greatly adds to the appearance of the bank. The decorations were made in oil, a light tan color having been chosen in order that the best light might be obtained. The building is heated by steam.

The second floor of the new building has been arranged very conveniently as an office building and the rooms will be occupied by Dr. L. B. Hill, Dr. A. F. Brunow, C. B. Davis, and John H. Kamman.

The Seymour National Bank began business in this city December 21, 1891, having been organized very largely through the efforts of Lynn Faulkner, who is still an officer and a member of the board of directors. The first president was George F. Harlow and the first cashier was the late Elias D. Brown. Mr. Harlow served as president but a short time and was succeeded by Benjamin F. Price, who occupied that position until a few years ago when he voluntarily resigned. The present president, H. C. Johnson, was elected to the presidency after the resignation of Mr. Price. Since its organization the bank has been very prosperous and has enjoyed a very healthful growth.

Mr. Johnson, who is now the president, is recognized as one of the foremost bankers in Indiana. He has become prominent in the banking circles of the country, and has had the honor of serving as President of the Indiana Bankers Association, and at the present time is the Indiana representative of the council of the American Banking Association, the largest institution in financial circles. During his term as president, the bank has had a

BROWNSTOWN MAN HELD AT FT. SCOTT

Bruce Trowbridge Arrested in Kansas Upon Information of Jackson County Officers.

SHERIFF WENT AFTER HIM

Wanted in Connection With The Theft of Horse, Buggy and Other Property.

Sheriff McOsker left this morning for Ft. Scott, Kansas and will bring back with him Bruce Trowbridge, who is wanted at Brownstown in connection with the alleged theft of a horse, wagon, harness and some other property several weeks ago. At the time of the robbery the officers suspected Trowbridge as being the guilty party and have kept in close touch with his movements since that time. About a week after the property was stolen he was reported to be in Corydon, and Sheriff McOsker made a trip to that place after him but upon his arrival there however, he found that Trowbridge had escaped and the officers were unable to locate him.

Tuesday Sheriff McOsker received a telegram stating that the officers at Ft. Scott had arrested him and word was sent back to hold the man until the arrival of the Jackson county officer.

The horse and wagon which were stolen belonged to William Dailey. After hitching up the horse to the wagon the thief stole a number of valuable chickens from several persons at Brownstown and hauled them to Vallonia where he sold them to a poultry firm. The horse was turned loose up on the highway and was found on the following morning. The wagon was concealed in a woods quite a distance from the main road while the harness was found hanging on a small tree along the highway. They were returned to their owner as soon as located.

It is said that the evidence against Trowbridge is quite strong and that the officers believe that he is unquestionably the party who stole the property.

We haven't all sizes in all these shoes, but we have all sizes in some of them. The fact that sizes are broken accounts for the price. Styles are mainly good—the few that are slightly off were formerly the highest priced. These would make comfortable, durable work shoes at a price you generally pay for the cheapest, giving you three times the service you get out of an ordinary $2.00 shoe.

OHIO THREATENS AN OUSTER SUIT

Attorney General Calls Pennsylvania Road to Time.

VIOLATION OF ANTI-TRUST LAW

Using His Proposed Action Upon an Alleged Agreement to Cut Out One-Day Excursion Traffic This Summer, Attorney General Hogan of Ohio Has Directed a Sharp Letter of Inquiry Bearing Upon the Matter.

Columbus, O., July 24.—Addressed to Commissioner Donald of the Central Passenger association, Chicago, a purported letter from George W. Boyd, general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania railroad, dated Philadelphia, July 2, which has fallen into the hands of Attorney General Hogan, has determined that official to institute a suit in ouster against the railroad under the Ohio anti-trust law.

The attorney general has contemplated such action for some time, because he believed that the no-one-day excursion policy adopted last spring by railroads in the association constituted an agreement in violation of the anti-trust law, and because he thought the action was decided upon as a means of breaking down the state's two-cent passenger fare law. The purported letter from Passenger Agent Boyd convinces him he was right in his suspicion.

The copy which fell into Mr. Hogan's hands contained this sentence: "We are glad to lend our aid to the Central Traffic association lines in their effort to secure relief from the present law by refraining from running usual special excursions between Cleveland, Buffalo and intermediate points during the summer season."

Mr. Hogan wrote a sharp letter to Commissioner Donald of Chicago, asking if he had received the Boyd letter, saying further: "I beg to advise that this department believes your association is instrumental in causing several railroads to violate the laws of this state." He demands to know what regulations have been made with reference to passenger traffic in Ohio.

The attorney general is vigorous in his denunciation of the railways' action regarding excursions. He frankly admits that while possibly he cannot compel railways to run excursions, the state has power to prevent the railways from reaching an agreement to that effect. Although early in the morning it was said there would be no ouster suits in Ohio this summer, threats of ouster suits have been brought all around except the Pennsylvania.

GAVE HIM A SENDOFF

Crowd Sings Sentimental Songs When British Murderer Is Hanged.

London, July 24.—There were remarkable scenes at Blackburn in connection with the execution of a weaver by the name of Birkitt, who killed his sweetheart by cutting her throat through reasons of jealousy. The crowd held a service in the house in which Birkitt had resided which was very impressive. Among those present was the mother of the murdered woman.

A table in the center of the room was covered with floral tributes. Outside the house a crowd of several hundred collected and on the stroke of the fatal hour when the drop fell the crowd sang "Nearer My God to Thee."

A Runaway Streetcar.

Indianapolis, July 24.—Dashing down the Virginia avenue viaduct at a speed estimated at thirty miles an hour, a streetcar loaded with about thirty passengers, struck an interurban car. Sixteen of the passengers received injuries that needed the attention of a physician. Seven of them were taken to the city hospital. Failure of the airbrakes to work is given as the cause of the accident by the streetcar company.

President Preparing Speech.

Washington, D. C., July 24.—President Taft has begun preparation of his speech accepting the presidential nomination of the Republican party. ## SOUTHERN CHIVALRY GIVEN A BLACK EYE

Brutal Georgians Whip Girl to Point of Death.

Macon, Ga., July 24.—At the point of death, Essie Carter, the young girl whipped at Dawson Sunday night by eighteen prominent men headed by W. S. Dozier, clerk of the Tennessean superior court, is in a Macon hospital, and the chances are that Dozier and his friends will have to face a charge of murder. The girl has made an ante-mortem statement telling how she was seized, stripped of her clothing and cut to pieces by a buggy whip in the hands of Dozier. The physicians say that the girl has been literally fayed alive.

"Mr. Dozier whipped me because his youngest son, Vogt, loved me and I returned his love," said the girl. "I urged Vogt to give me up to please his father, but he wouldn't do it, and the father whipped me. There were eighteen men in the party, and after I was stripped one of them held a lantern so Mr. Dozier could see where to strike me."

Dozier has issued a statement admitting that he whipped the girl. He says he did it to save his son, who refused to give her up. Prominent lawyers have taken up the girl's case and will prosecute. It is reported that young Vogt Dozier has sworn to kill his father and friends for the maltreatment of the young woman.

Miss Carter, who is an orphan, accompanied by her sister, was brought here for treatment and the hospital physicians say if she recovers she will be crippled for life.

GRAND JURY IS GETTING FACTS

Further Details of New York Police Graft Case.

WHERE LIEUT. BECKER CAME IN

Widow of Murdered Gambler Tells Inquisitors That Becker Received a 20 Per Cent Rake-Off on Her Husband's Gambling Business—Harry Vallon, Mild Mannered Gambler, Gives Himself Up, but Has an Alibi.

New York, July 24.—Every word in her husband's affidavit against Lieutenant Becker was true, the widow of Herman Rosenthal told the grand jury. Hysterical and haunted by the fear that she herself would be murdered, Mrs. Rosenthal in intervals of weeping described the intimate relations between the gambler and the lieutenant of police.

She said that Becker received 20 per cent of the profits of Rosenthal's gambling house until Bald Jack Rose, Becker's collector, became too greedy and insisted on a rake-off himself. Then, said Mrs. Rosenthal, her husband was forced to get rid of Becker, although he never believed that Becker would interfere with the business.

And then she told about the raid. She said that Becker, an old friend of hers and Herman's, came to the gambling house, apologetically, and with his hat in his hand. He was sorry, he said, clear down to the ground, but Waldo had ordered him to get Rosenthal and the job had to be done.

Becker knew it was hard on Herman, the widow went on, but he wanted to do the right thing, and so he told Mrs. Rosenthal that Herman could forget the $1,500 he had borrowed from him and that the mortgage would be cancelled.

A few hours after Mrs. Rosenthal left the grand jury room, Harry Vallon, who had given himself up, was under the fire of District Attorney Whitman's questioning. Ready with an alibi, like all of the other figures in the murder case, Vallon insisted that he had had no hand in the killing and that he did not know a single man who fired a shot. But he did admit that he had been around with Jack Rose that night on Lieutenant Becker's business and that with Sam Schepps, he had accompanied Jack Rose to the house of Dora Gilbert, Rosenthal's divorced wife. In this house, it appears, many people had gathered for a pleasant evening. Vallon saw at least a dozen having drinks at somebody's expense. He himself got drunk and left Rose and Schepps at Bridge Webber's some time after 1 o'clock on Tuesday morning. Fuddled and dazed, he stumbled into the subway and went to call on Mr. and Mrs. Harry Signal at 226 East Fourteenth street.

The story told by the mild-mannered, gentle-spoken gambler, whose appearance is very different from that of the square-jawed, heavy-shouldered gunmen with whom he associated, will lead, the district attorney believes, to a breakdown on the part of other men under arrest. Jack Rose, who hired the gray car, has been advised for his own good to walk the line of truth. And if Rose tells what he knows, the district attorney thinks that the evidence will lead to the policemen most concerned in the silencing of Rosenthal.

The third important development in the Rosenthal case and concerning the general investigation as to whether there had been partnership between policemen and gamblers, was the announcement by the district attorney that the offer of private funds to pay for the services of William J. Burns has been accepted. The Burns investigation as planned will be of the broadest nature. It will try to get at what politicians, if any, have been interested in a police-gambler partnership, and it will, of course, take up the Rosenthal murder case in all of its details.

Declined to Take Hint.

Birmingham, Ala., July 24.—Receiving a letter requesting his resignation as collector of internal revenue for Alabama and Tennessee, a position he has held for ten years, Joseph O. Thompson of Birmingham has declined to resign and has sent a warm reply to Secretary MacVeagh of the treasury department at Washington, criticizing the administration of President Taft and the secretary.

Railroads' Expenses Growing.

New York, July 24.—The narrow margin by which some railroads cling to existence was clearly brought out before the Straus arbitration board and B. A. ## ENGLAND NEEDS NEW LABOR LEGISLATION

Time Has Come to Reconsider Whole Problem.

London, July 24.—The problem of labor disputes is to be dealt with by the government by legislation. Chancellor Lloyd George in the course of the debate in the house of commons on the dockers' strike, said the labor disputes were becoming more and more serious and were more and more challenging British commercial supremacy. The time had come, said Mr. George, to reconsider the whole problem and the government proposed to deal with it by some form of legislation in the immediate future.

It would be a mistake, said the chancellor, to try to deal with the dock strike as an isolated affair. The industrial council, which takes all such questions into consideration, were now considering the best method of tackling the whole question. The chancellor did not indicate on what lines they would take it up, but intimated that guarantees must be exacted from both sides in labor disputes for enforcement of conditions by the council. His hearers inferred that the chancellor meant that some form of compulsory arbitration was intended. This is likely to bring the government in conflict with the labor members of parliament who are part of the bloc and who will wholly oppose any such movement.

Will Inquire Into It.

New York, July 24.—An inquiry will be conducted before the federal grand jury into the circumstances under which Colonel Christopher Columbus, the former United Wireless head, has been living with Keeper Shea of Atlanta prison at a boarding house in the Bronx, instead of being kept in the Tombs while he has been here since July 1 to testify in the United Wireless bankruptcy proceedings.

MAINTAIN WILL WAS A FORGERY

Interesting Case Is Being Bitterly Fought.

REQUIRED ACT OF KINDNESS

McMurrin's Entire Wealth of $40,000 Was Left to Poor Servant Girl Who Fed Traveler at the Door, According to the Writing on a Scrap of Brown Wrapping Paper, Which Relatives of Decedent Say Is a Forgery.

Petersburg, Ind., July 24.—The Marshall-McMurrin will case, filed here, on a change of venue from Vanderburg county, is being tried here before a struck jury. More than seventy witnesses have been summoned, some from as far away as California.

The plaintiffs contend that the will, which had been written on a piece of brown wrapping paper, in which McMurrin gave his entire wealth of $40,000 to a poor servant girl who fed him while he was hungry and was berated for so doing by her employer, had been forged and was not in McMurrin's handwriting. In evidence they introduced many letters written by McMurrin.

An effort is also to be made to prove McMurrin was not himself at the time the will was made. All McMurrin's relatives are here, and every effort will be made to have the will set aside.

McMurrin was regarded as eccentric, but was noted for kind deeds. Sometimes he would disguise himself as a tramp and "hike" along the roadways asking for food, merely to test the generosity of the people on whom he called. It was on one of these occasions he met the servant who became his heir. She was so kind to him that he told her, it is said, he would remember her in his will.

WORKS SCHEME

Young Man Represents Himself as Another and Gets Money.

Lafayette, Ind., July 24.—Charged with defrauding an Indianapolis firm by means of a bogus telegram, Paul Mafoia, aged nineteen, is in jail here awaiting trial. The young man has been here several weeks, coming to Lafayette from Indianapolis. At the Johnson hotel he made the acquaintance of Arco B. Conrad.

Mafoia learned that Conrad was expecting a letter from his employers containing a remittance for traveling expenses. Mafoia went to the post-office and inquired for Conrad's mail, representing that to be his name. No mail had come, so Mafoia thought of another scheme. He went to the telegraph company and sent a telegram to the Indianapolis company, signing Conrad's name, and requesting $30 expense money to be sent by wire. The money was sent to him promptly and he signed Conrad's name to the receipt. Then Mafoia went to a clothing store and fitted himself out in a new suit.

When Conrad saw Mafoia he called the police, and as a result of the investigation the whole scheme was revealed and the money recovered.

Close Call For Workmen.

Fort Wayne, Ind., July 24.—Fifteen minutes after the noon whistle had called the employees of the Fort Wayne Foundry and Machine works off duty, a big compressed air tank in the yards of the foundry exploded with terrific force. Buildings in the vicinity were shaken and one piece of the steel tank weighing 150 pounds was hurled more than a block distant and imbedded deeply in the ground. The fact that the men had stopped work for lunch but a few minutes before the accident alone saved injuries and possible loss of life to many of them.

Aid For Alleged Dynamiters.

Indianapolis, July 24.—The Central Labor Union has taken steps to aid in raising a local fund for the defense of the men indicted in the dynamite conspiracy cases, which are set for trial in federal court Oct. 1. The two local men under indictment are S. P. Meadows, secretary of the Building Trades Council, and Fred Sherman, business agent of the Indianapolis local of iron workers.

Another Ticket Office Robbed.

Fort Wayne, Ind., July 24.—When he turned around as somebody tapped him on the shoulder, Heber Mosher, night ticket agent for the Pennsylvania railroad at Columbia City, looked into the muzzle of a revolver in the hands of a robber. Mosher threw his hands up at the request of the robber, who then took $145 from the cash drawer and made his escape.

A $1,000,000 Deal For New Mines. Terre Haute, Ind., July 24.—Hugh Shirkle, a coal operator, has filed papers for the mineral rights of 1,000 acres of coal land northwest of the city. More contracts are to be filed this week. Mr. Shirkle's company will spend $1,000,000 in opening up mines in the new field.

Stepped Into Hole.

AMERICAN COMPANY RAIDED BY REBELS

Rojas Manages to Maintain His Reputation.

Chihuahua, July 24.—When he reached here with his rebel command, enroute to Sonora, Antonio Rojas upheld his record as "rebel raider." The store of the Dolores Milnes company, an American concern, was looted of $5,000 worth of goods and the safe blown and $6,000 in cash taken. All the pack mules of the company were taken. The rebels were opposed by eighty federals as they entered the town and this enraged them, as the rebels had heard that the mining company had been paying and feeding the federals.

DECREASE REPORTED

Nearly Every County in State Shows Shortage of Personal Property.

Indianapolis, July 24.—Almost all the counties in the state have decreases in personal property appraisements this year, according to statements made before the state board of tax commissioners by county assessors, county auditors and county treasurers, summoned to talk over county appraisements.

Shortage in forage and grain crops last year, resulting in a shortage of feed for live stock, was given as the chief cause of the decrease.

The Grace Trial Set For Monday.

Atlanta, Ga., July 24.—Mrs. Daisy Opie Grace, formerly Mrs. Daisy Opie of Philadelphia, will be put on trial next Monday on the charge of having drugged and shot her husband in order to get $25,000 insurance on his life. Her husband, who is still paralyzed from the wound, has been summoned as a witness against her and will be brought into court on a stretcher.

Didn't Like Foreign Bunting.

STATE FINANCES AGAIN.
State house democrats, acting under the law's mandate, have applied $150,000 to the payment of a part of the state debt. It is unfortunate, both for the democrats and for the state of Indiana, that the present law was not in force in 1910 and 1911. Today the state debt sinking fund is sacred. Money raised by the sinking fund levy can not be used to pay running expenses, but must be applied on the state debt or to pay interest on that debt.

In the fiscal year of 1910 and 1911, under democratic appropriations, the state's expenses far out ran the state's income. To meet extravagant appropriations made by democrats in 1909 it was necessary to use the state debt sinking fund. Of this fund $789,000 was used in 1910 to pay current bills. Of the sinking fund $288,000 was used in 1911 to pay current bills, and still the democrats were more than $51,000 in the hole. Of the sinking fund more than $120,000 has been used in the fiscal year 1912 to pay current or general expenses. Since the new law to save the sinking fund from the raiders has gone into effect something more than $150,000 has accrued. It is this money that has just been paid on the state debt. Current bills continue to call, extravagance still exists but the sinking fund at this particular time can not be employed to pay anything but the debt or interest on the debt.

It would be a fine thing for the democrats if they could point at that cold million of sinking fund as an asset today. It would be a fine thing to pay a million on the state debt at the opening of the campaign. But, alas, the million went to pay the higher cost of democratic state administration, and the sinking fund, when it should be full and overflowing, now contains a little more than $400.—Indianapolis Star.

reach the garage. The Haynes car, which was driven by C. L. Williams and accompanied by Arch Haynes, the son of the president of the Haynes Company, was especially attractive in that it was the car which was assembled in one hundred and five minutes at an exhibition recently.

Several members of the Indiana Motor Club came to Seymour to meet the tourists and to accompany them to Indianapolis, where a reception will be given tomorrow. Among the motor enthusiasts who came were W. S. Gilbreath, secretary of the association, R. R. Bunch, William Bright and F. E. Wescoff, all prominent in automobile circles.

The McCoy-Thompson Garage was the scene of great attraction today while making preparations for the arrival of the cavalcade. All the machines belonging to the garage and also those kept there were lined up along the curb. Along table was placed in the garage and all the arrangements made for the melon feast. As the members of the party left Louisville about 9 o'clock they had only a small lunch at Salem and the manner in which they went after the Jackson county melons, which were set before them, indicated that they enjoyed the feast thoroughly. Compliment after compliment was passed upon the quality of the Jackson county melons, and a number of the tourists were heard to remark that whenever possible they would purchase them. The Jackson county products has been given one of the best advertisements for a number of years.

Welcome addresses were given by Judge O. H. Montgomery, Judge John M. Lewis, J. H. Matlock and T. S. Blish, who acted as toastmaster. The speakers gave a warm welcome to the visitors and also touched upon the need of better roads. Responses were given by B. S. Wenanco and W. S. Gilbreath. They said that they appreciated the entertainment which had been given in honor of the Four States tour.

After the conclusion of the speaking program, the visitors gave three cheers for Seymour. A picture of the motorists was taken before they started on their journey towards Columbus.

SMALL POX IN LAWRENCE COUNTY CAUSES EXCITEMENT

Young Girl is Afflicted But Was Supposed to Have Been Suffering From Chickenpox.

There is quite a smallpox scare in Lawrence county, the disease having broken out in several towns. The latest report is from Williams regarding which the Bedford Mail has the following:

There was much excitement in the vicinity of Williams Monday when it was discovered that smallpox had broken out within a half mile of that town. Miss Grace Terrell, who makes her home with Mrs. Cora Fidler, was found to be suffering from the malady.

One thing that is worrying some of the residents of the little city is that the girl had been suffering from the disease for several days before the nature of the trouble was discovered. It was at first supposed that she was suffering from a severe case of chickenpox, though able to go about.

Some of the members of the family became suspicious of the disease and caused the local county health officer to make an examination. When it was found that she was really suffering from smallpox the family was quarantined.

The situation is not as alarming as it might be, however, as the family resides about one half of a mile from Williams and the girl has not been attending any church or public gathering as far as known, and it is believed that very few have been exposed to the ailment.

Mrs. Ferguson, with whom the girl resides and two male members of the family are all that have been directly exposed it is believed.

The girl became stricken with the malignant disease, following a trip to Jasonville. She attended a funeral at that place that was also attended by a young man afflicted with the disease. It is understood that several who attended the funeral have become stricken.

There is every reason to hope that the local health authorities will be able to cope with the situation and that the disease will not spread.

MOTION PICTURE MEN TAKE STAND AGAINST IMMORAL FILM

Bill Will Be Presented to Next Legislature Asking For State Board of Censorship.

Motion picture exhibitors of Indiana, through the state branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, will present a bill to the next Legislature providing for a state censorship board for picture theaters. The state organization, at a meeting at Indianapolis Tuesday, took a definite stand in opposition to suggestive or immoral films in Indiana theaters, urging the use of more historical and educational subjects.

Many men from all parts of the state attended the meeting, which placed the question of censorship legislation in the hands of the state secretary, F. J. Rambush of Shelbyville, and H. W. Summers of Indianapolis.

State censorship boards are being urged by the national organization as a means of uplifting motion picture theaters, and through the state organizations, now including more than fifteen Eastern states, with several more branches to be admitted at the national convention in Chicago, Aug. 13, efforts are being made to have all the states adopt representative legislation on the subject. The Indiana bill will be drafted in accordance with the most advanced ideas of the national organization and will be pushed vigorously before the Legislature.

C. H. Williams, of the Dreamland Electric theatre attended the meeting.

NEW PARTY ELECTS A TOWNSHIP CHAIRMAN

John A. Goodale is Chosen to Head The Organization In This Township.

A small number of the progressive party held a meeting Tuesday night to discuss preliminary plans for the new organization. About thirty-five were present. John Goodale was selected chairman of Jackson township. The precinct committeemen were selected for most of the precincts, but the names have not yet been announced until the leaders feel sure that all those named will serve.

The members present were in favor of placing a full county ticket in the field this fall and the matter will be taken up with the other township committeemen before any definite action is taken. Chairman John Goodale will issue the township call in a short time.

FIRST DUTY

Find Means of Support Without Aid

By FRANK CRANE

"A MAN'S first duty," said an eminent English scientist, "is to find a way to support himself, thereby relieving other people of the necessity of supporting him."

That I consider a shrewd observation.

Whatever may be your nature, whether you feel yourself to be an artist, or experience within yourself the movings of poesy, it is well to learn to do something that will enable you to exist with self-respect by taking yourself off other people's backs.

The one work to take up is some kind of work the world is willing to pay for.

You may be created to do something wonderful or beautiful or wise, but primarily you are created to do something for men that will persuade them to feed and clothe you.

First earn your salt, then come on with your message.

In the olden days the Jews taught every child a trade. The youth might grow up to be a learned rabbi, but on a pinch he could mend chairs. Saint Paul was a tent maker. He discharged his debt to the race by making tents; he threw in his gospel as boot.

It is what you do to boot that brings you glory and honor, praise and power. But don't forget your main duty, which is to earn your wage.

If you don't have to work for a living it is too bad. You may amount to something, but the chances are against you.

A few endowed gentlemen and ladies have helped the world along a little, in the course of history, but not enough to matter.

Most people look upon a condition where they would be freed from the struggle for bread and butter and house rent as a heaven devoutly to be wished.

Hence we have erected universities and scholarships and endowments so that superior folk might devote all their energies to higher things. For the most part those segregated and sheltered classes have done nothing much but maintain old ideas long after they are dead and should have been buried, or contribute to the already endless bric-a-brac of learned uselessness.

Wage labor is work. What you do after you work is play.

Your play is the best thing you do. All true art, philosophy and religion is the soul's play. There's no wage for it, and there never can be.

If you work all the time you become stupid, like the huge cane cutters.

If you play all the time, like the endowed folk, you become silly, probably also vicious.

If therefore you would be normal, healthy and happy, do something each day that mankind is willing to pay money for, put forth some effort accessible to the common denominator of human activity—money; do that, then do something that cannot be paid for.

Perhaps you can do both at the same time.

Nature Favors Active and Busy Life

By Eleanor R. Larrison, Chicago

Plenty of love, work and play are what are good for us—play to build us up when we are weary, work to keep us from getting into mischief, love to make work worth while.

And if we are unhappy, most likely there is something wrong with that great life trinity. The ideal lot would be congenial work—that into which one could put one's very best, loving and being loved by delightful people, and having the means of real recreation—that which verily recreates—always at hand.

But in this very practical world, which is only a training school anyhow, it would seem that it is enough for the average man if these three are present, even in imperfection.

Most of us must love very ordinary folks, for we are ourselves of the ordinary sort; most of us haven't had the time or means to develop all that may be in us, much less find the round or square holes that exactly fit our round or square shapes; most of us can't choose between golf, automobiling, tennis, horseback riding and fancy gymnastics at the athletic club, but must content ourselves with walking home from business or a game of ball with the boys in the back yard.

But only when we love heartily and work well and play whenever we get a chance will life be wholesome, human, real.

Subtle Nerves Are Hard to Control

By WILLIAM G. JOHNSON, Altoona, Pa.

Two persons occupy a seat in a railway car that is wrecked, but neither is injured physically in the least. Suppose also that one of the two is hardy, robust, courageous, with a strong nervous organization, while the other is weak, timid, with shattered nerves. The shock might easily cause the nervous person to suffer both in mind and in body and be made sick, while the other escaped with no unpleasant permanent effects whatever.

Would the fright in one case be actionable, and not actionable in the other? Would the railway company be held responsible for the nervous condition of all the passengers? In that case it might be necessary to have a specialist to examine passengers before they board the trains or trolley cars, in order that the company might not be liable. Such delicate and subtle things as nerves are hard to control, even by profound and well-established principles of law.

DENEEN FOR TAFT

Governor of Illinois and Republican Ticket Declare Themselves.

Springfield, Ill., July 23.—Governor Deneen and the other nominees on the Republican state ticket have told the Roosevelt committee of five, which came to the state capital practically on the orders of the colonel himself, that they expect to support the Republican national ticket and that they would not endorse Roosevelt and his new party. This is taken to mean the nomination of another state ticket, composed of men who were identified with the new political party.

Discussing the possible effect of a third ticket in Illinois, the governor said: "The most that could be hoped to be achieved by such a course would be the defeat of the Republican nominees for state offices."

A Hero in a Lighthouse.

For years J. S. Donahue, So. Haven, Mich., a civil-war captain, as a lighthouse keeper, averted awful wrecks, but a queer fact is, he might have been a wreck himself, if Electric Bitters had not prevented. "They cured me of kidney trouble and chills," he writes, "after I had taken other so called cures for years, without benefit and they also improved my sight. Now, at seventy, I am feeling fine." For dyspepsia, indigestion, all stomach, liver and kidney troubles, they're without equal. Try them. Only 50 cents at The Andrews Drug Co., Seymour, Ind.

Naturalization.

The first English naturalization laws were passed about the year 1437. The ancient Romans and other peoples received aliens into citizenship and, of course, they had to have some form by which this was done. Naturalization means the complete cutting off of the alien from allegiance to that country in which he was born.

A man cannot be part American and part Italian or Englishman. The moment he becomes a citizen of the United States his political obligation to any other country ceases absolutely. To the American citizen there is but one supreme authority—the Constitution of the United States and the laws made in pursuance thereto.

Chinese Children Like Paris.

Recently a number of Chinese children have been found in the streets of Paris and taken before the magistrates as vagabonds. These children were brought to France by showmen to perform as acrobats. After a few months, their performances having lost their novelty and ceased to attract, the managers abandoned them. They have been taken to the Chinese legation to be sent home. But they don't want to go home. The beautiful city of Paris is more to their liking.

Price of Ignorance.

Many children are never taught to think and to reason out every question in a fair-minded, reasoning manner. That is why we meet with and suffer from so many unreasonable and unreasoning men and women . . . who are governed by prejudice, impulse and personal feelings, instead of by thoughtful and careful consideration. They do not see what is right because they do not know how to judge without prejudice.—Our Four-Footed Friends.

ANTI-TRUST BILL IS A SCORCHER

Recommendations Radical Beyond Anticipation.

PUTS CLAMPS ON THE TRUSTS

Program Outlined by the Stanley Steel Committee of Congress Proposes the Most Far-Reaching Changes in Sherman Law That Has Ever Been Laid Before Congress and Is Designed to Curtail Combinations.

Washington, July 23.—Radical beyond anticipation are the legislative recommendations of the majority members of the Stanley steel committee, which finally have been completed.

The steel committee proposes the most far-reaching changes in the Sherman anti-trust law that has ever been laid before congress. The program offered by the Stanley committee proposes that individuals shall have the power to bring suits in equity for an injunction under the Sherman anti-trust law and that they also shall have the power to intervene in any suit brought by the government under this act.

The bill also proposes that the burden of proof in regard to the reasonableness or unreasonableness of a restraint of trade shall be shifted from the complainant to the defendant corporation. In addition to these recommendations the committee's bill defines acts which shall constitute unreasonable restraints of trade.

The committee says that it has attempted to select various practices commonly pursued by trusts, which have proved particularly oppressive and to set these up as rendering the combination conclusively unreasonable and therefore illegal. The practices, any one of which, if the Stanley commission has its way, will constitute presumptive evidence that the restraint exercised by the corporation is unreasonable, are set forth at some length.

Another section of the Stanley bill holds that the mere fact that an accused corporation controls 30 per cent of the output of its product shall be presumptive evidence, in the event of a combination in restraint of trade being shown, that such restraint was unreasonable. Pointing out that the Standard Oil and Tobacco trusts acquired hundreds of millions of dollars from the public through illegal practices, involving the destruction of many independent concerns, another section of the bill provides for the temporary protection of those whose business existence is threatened through monopolization. This section hits particularly at the United Shoe Machinery company, which controls the shoe-making machinery of the country. Another section gives the courts broad powers to partition corporations held to be illegal under the law. This is regarded as one of the most radical sections of the bill. Commenting on this section, the committee says: "The provisions of this section are designed to make clear the power of the court to bring about a real dissolution of the trusts and to avoid such shams as the alleged disintegration in the tobacco trust and Standard Oil cases."

The bill also prohibits persons engaged in the manufacture of steel rails or other steel railroad equipment from becoming directors or officers of railroads. This is aimed, of course, at the directors of the United States Steel corporation who are members of the governing boards of railroads.

All Sores Are Not Cancerous

While all Old Sores are not cancerous in their nature, every slow healing ulcer shows a degenerated condition of the blood. Virulent impurities in the circulation produce angry, discharging ulcers, while milder and more inert germs are usually manifested in the form of indolent sores or dry, scabby places. Efforts to heal an old sore with external applications always result in failure because such treatment does not reach the blood, and the ulcer will continue to eat deeper into the surrounding flesh as long as a polluted circulation discharges its impurities into it. S. S. S. heals old sores of every nature by purifying the blood. It goes to the fountain-head of the trouble and drives out the germ-producing poisons and morbid impurities which prevent the place from healing. Then a stream of rich, nourishing blood, which S. S. S. creates, causes a perfect and natural knitting together of all flesh fibres, making a thorough and permanent cure. The sore does not "come back" when S. S. S. has made a cure, because its source has been destroyed. Book on sores and ulcers and medical advice free.

CHAPTER XXIV.

The Hall of the Chevalliers.

The report of the capture of the Black Seigneur spread from Mount to town; from rock to shore. Pilgrims repeated, peasants circulated it; many credited; a few disbelieved. Like shadows had his comrades and the escaped prisoners vanished, leaving no trace, save one—an over-turned car and severed rope at the foot of the poulain, without the fortifications. And flocking to that point, of greater interest now than shrine or sanctuary, the pilgrims gazed around; down the rocks; up the almost perpendicular planking to what looked like a mere pigeon-hole in the side of the cliff. Then ominous grumbings escaped them; some shook their fists at the black wall; others scoffed at distant sounds of priestly hallelujahs. Had the soldiers that day appeared in the town or on the beach, serious trouble would have ensued. For the time, however, they remained discreetly housed, while supplies for pilgrims' needs were, by the commandant's orders, so curtailed, many of the indigent multitude, urged by pinched stomachs, began, ere night, to wend their way from strand to shore. But as they left the vicinity of the Mount, they turned last looks of hatred toward the rock.

His Excellency, the Governor, wasted no time considering the humor of the masses; their resentment, or displeasure, signified nothing; his own complacency left little room for speculation on that score. He was undeniably satisfied; even the escape of the prisoners and the loss of the soldiers at the guard-house, or in the wheel-room, was over-shadowed by the single capture. This contentment, however, he kept to himself; instigated a rigorous inquiry, and prepared to punish certain offenders. But the principal of these he could not reach; when released from the iron cage, the hunchback, knowing he would be called upon to answer for his part in the night's work, had made the best use of his short legs to place a long distance between himself and the Mount.

The sentinel that allowed the Black Seigneur to pass through the entrance near the barracks; the watchman encountered on the stairway, and the soldier that had been overpowered in the stable, his Excellency could, however, lay hands on, and promptly ordered into custody to await his official attention. For this last culprit, the commandant—mindful, perhaps, of bolstering his own position—interceded; pointing out that the man had to get the gag from his mouth and give the alarm; also, that the mountebank's appearance and acting had been calculated to deceive even one of the governor's discernment. Which remark his Excellency had received with sphinx-like, and not altogether reassuring, gravity; had reserved his verdict, and continued, after his own fashion, to collect the details of the affair.

The searching process should have led him almost at once to his daughter—a puzzling figure in the maze of events; but the Governor had exhibited no haste in approaching that important witness. Only when he had marshaled his other testimony and put it in order did the scope of his sifting extend to the girl.

"When you sent for the mountebank to come to your apartments, did you know who he was?" the Governor asked.

"No."
"When did you find out?"
"When you entered the room."
"Why did you not give the alarm then?"

"Because," she hesitated; her face changed, "he would have killed you, I think—if I had!"

"Was that solicitude for me the only reason?"
"Why, what other could there be?"
"What other, truly? And after he left with the commandant—why did you not, then, inform me?"

"You remember you had something important, from the King, to consider," hastily.

"More important than this?"
"He was going to be locked up," was the best reply she could make.
"And in the morning set free?"
She did not answer.

"And yet, you gave the word that enabled us to capture him at the wheel-house! How, by the way, came you there—in the wheel-house?"

"I saw him from the abbott's bridge; heard him tell the watchman he had a message to deliver at your palace, and followed."
"Again feeling solicitude for me?"
"I did not know—he would dare much; and what does it matter now?" almost wildly. "You have captured him, shut him up somewhere in some terrible, deep dungeon, where—"
"He is safe? True; that is the main consideration."
Thereafter had the subject of the Black Seigneur been dropped between them; the pilgrimage over, the Mount resumed its normal aspect, but only for a little while! One day about a week later, a bright cortege whose appearance was in marked contrast to that of the beggarly multitude, late visitors to the rock, came riding down through the forest to the sea; at the verge of the sands, stopped for a first distant impression of the rock.

"Noble monument, I salute you!" Smiling, debonair, the Marquis de Beauvilliers removed his hat.

"And the noble mistress thereof?" suggested one of his train.

"She, of course!" he said, still surveying a scene different from that final memory he had carried away with him. Then had the rock reared itself in all the glamour of a sunny day; now was the sky overcast, while through a sullen mist the Mount loomed like a shadow itself.

"A cold place for our gay Elise!" One or two who viewed the sight for the first time looked disappointed; even the Marquis appeared for the instant more sober; but immediately regained his lively demeanor.

"Wait until you have seen it at its best," he retorted carelessly, and set the pace across the sands.

Midway, where once on the sands the men of Brittany had engaged in fierce conflict the ancient abbott's forces, were the new-comers met by an imposing guard; escorted with due honor through the gates, and up the narrow street of the town.

As he climbed the winding highway, my lord, the Marquis, bestowed approving nod and smile this way and that; it may be that he already felt a nearer affiliation with these people; for his glance, gracious, condescending in passing, was that of a man armed with the knowledge that he, Minsman of the King, might some day be called upon to govern here. But to these advances, the townspeople responded ill, and the young noble's brow went delicately up, as if a little amused! Mon dieu! did not unfriendly eyes peer from every lurking place around the royal palaces and pleasure grounds near Paris; and had they not encountered them all the way to the sea? People were the same everywhere; must be treated like bad children, and, with relays of troops from the capital to the sea, from the strand to the Mount's high top, one could afford to smile at their petty humors. Above all, when one had more momentous matter for consideration! And my lord lifted his head higher, toward a rampart, where some one had once bid him au revoir, and where he might yet in fancy see a fluttering ribbon wave a bright adieu!

But today my lady, the Princess of the Rock, was not there; waited above, with her father, to receive him—then—in the great Hall of the Chevalliers. Until that morning she had not known of the coming of the Marquis, an impatient suitor, following the courier and the perfumed missive acquainting her with the noble's near approach. Certainly had she shown surprise; but whether she was pleased or not, his Excellency could not tell.

He was still uncertain; standing, near the raised gallery, in the ancient salle des chevalliers, from time to time regarded her furtively! Often had she looked from one of the round windows, commanding a view of the shore and the sands; many times turned away. At first sight of the company on the beach, the Governor had seen the girl's face alter and noted the involuntary start she had given. Whereupon, moving toward one of the giant fire-places, had he sought for the sake of diplomacy and the end in view, to turn their conversation into a channel that should have interested her; spoke of plans to be made; preparations for festivities and merrymaking commensurate with the circumstances. But to these suggestions of gaieties, the prelude to a stately ceremony, had she hardly listened; paused absently before the blazing logs; once or twice seemed about to say something and stopped.

She was silent now, a slender figure beneath that great canopy of stone designed for the shelter of a score of knights; nervously twining and intertwining her fingers, she looked out at the shadows moving between the columns, playing around the bases, or melting in the vaulting.

"They should be almost here now," observed his Excellency, again seeking to break that spell of constraint, when suddenly she stepped to him.

"Mon pere," her voice sounded strained, unnatural, "it was you who wanted this marriage?"

"Yes," he had answered in some surprise; "yes."

"And I have not opposed you—the King—"

"Opposed? No! Of course not!" "Then," more hurriedly, "must you do something in return for me! I do not want my—the wedding festivities—marred by anything unpleasant! Promise that nothing will happen to him, the Black Seigneur, until after—"

"Impossible!" The sudden virulence her unexpected request awoke could not be concealed.

"Very well!" Before the anger in his gaze, her own eyes flashed like steel. "In that case, you can send the Marquis back! For I will not see him—today, tomorrow or any other time again!"

Long he looked at her; the white face; the tightly compressed lips; the eyes that would not flinch! They reminded him of another—were of the same hue—so like, and yet so different! Unlike, in bespeaking a will he could not break! What he said, matters not; his face wore an ashy shade. She did not answer in words; but he felt, with strange bitterness, a revulsion; she seemed almost suddenly to have become hostile to him.

Gay voices sounded without; nearer; she walked to a door opposite the entrance their visitors were approaching. An instant, and she would have passed out, when the Governor spoke.

But the Marquis, stepping quickly in a few moments later, noted nothing amiss between them. "Your Excellency!" With filial respect he greeted the Governor. "My Lady!" Gaily, approvingly, his eye passed over her; then in that hall dedicated to chivalry, a graceful figure, he sank to his knee; raised a small cold hand, and pressed it to his lips.

CHAPTER XXV.

The Under World.

A coterie of brilliant folk soon followed in the wake of my lord, the Marquis's retinue; holy-day banners were succeeded by holiday ribbons; the misere of the multitude by paeans of merriment. Hymen, lo Hymen! In assuming the leading role to which circumstances now assigned her, the Governor's daughter brought to the task less energy than she had displayed on that other occasion when visitors had sojourned at the rock. Her manner was changed—first, lukewarm; then, almost indifferent; until, at length, one day she fairly waived the responsibility of planning amusements; laid before them the question: What, now, would they like to do?

"Devise a play," said one.

"With shepherds and shepherdesses!"

The Marquis, however, qualified the suggestion. "A masque! that is very good; but, for this morning—I have been talking with the commandant—and have another proposal—"

"Which is?"

"To visit the dungeons."

"The dungeons?" My lady's face changed.

"And incidentally inspect their latest guest! Some of you heard of him when we were here before—Le Seigneur Noir—the Black Seigneur!"

"Le Seigneur Noir!" They clapped their hands. "Yes, let us see him! Nothing could be better. What do you say, Elise?"

She started to speak, but for the instant her lips could frame no answer; with a faint, strained smile, confronted him, when some one anticipated her reply.

"Did she not leave it to us? It is we who decide."

And a merry party they swept along, bearing her with them; up the broad stairway, cold, gray in the morn; beneath the abbott's bridge—black, spying span!—to the church, and thence to the isolated space before the guard-house to the dungeons. Here, at the sound of their voices, a man, carrying a bunch of keys—but outwardly the antithesis to the hunchback—peered from the entrance.

"Unless I am mistaken, the new jailer!" With a wave of his hand, the Marquis indicated this person.

"The commandant was telling me his Excellency had engaged one—from Bioret, or Fort l'Evêque, I believe?"

"Bioret, my lord!" said the man gravely. "And before that, the Bastille."

"Ah!" laughed the nobleman. "That pretty place some of the foolish people are grumbling about! As if we could do without prisons any more than without palaces! But we have come, my good fellow, to inspect this lower world of yours!"

The man's glance passed over the paper the Marquis handed him; then silently he moved aside, and unlocked the iron doors.

"Are you not coming?" At the threshold the Marquis looked back. When first they had approached the guard-house, involuntarily had the Governor's daughter drawn aside to the ramparts; now, with face half-averted, stood gazing off.

"Coming?" Surprised, the Marquis noted her expression; the fixed brightness of her eyes and her parted lips. "Oh, yes!" And turning abruptly, she hastened past him.

Would they have to be locked in?—the half-apprehensive query of one of the ladies caused the jailer at first to hesitate and then to answer in the negative. He would leave the doors from the outer room open, and himself await there the visitors' return. With which reassuring promise, he distributed lights; called a guardsman, familiar with the intricate underground passages, and consigned them to his care.

One of the gay procession, the Lady Elise stepped slowly forward; the guide proved a talkative fellow, and seemed anxious to answer their many inquiries concerning the place. The salle de la question? Yes, it existed; but the ancient torture devices for the "interrogatory ordinary" and the "in-terrogatory extraordinary" were no longer pressed into service; the King had ordered them relegated to the shelves of the museum. The cabanons, or black holes? Louis XI. built them; the carceres duri and vade in pace, however, dated from Saint Maurinus, fourth abbot of the Mount.

"And the Black Seigneur? How have you accommodated him?"

"In the petit exil; just to the left! We are going there now."

"I am going back!" A hand touched the arm of the Marquis, last of the file of visitors, and, lifting his candle, he held it so that the yellow glimmer played on the face of the Governor's daughter. Her eyes looked deeper; full of dread, as if the very spirit of the subterranean abode had seized her. He started.

"Surely you, Elise, are not afraid?"

"I prefer the sunlight," she said hurriedly in a low tone. "It—it is not cheerful down here! No; do not call the guide—or let the others know. I'll return alone, and—wait for you at the guard-house."

He, nevertheless, insisted upon accompanying her; but, indicating the not distant door through which they had come, she professed to make light of objections, and when he still clung to the point, replied with a flash of spirit, sudden and passionate. It compelled his acquiescence; left him surprised for a second time that day; a little hurt, too, perhaps, for heretofore had their intimacy been maintained on a strictly ethical and charming plane. But he had no time for analysis; the others were drawing away to the left, into a side passage; and, with a last backward glance toward the retreating figure, the Marquis reluctantly followed the majority.

Despite, however, her avowed repugnance for that under-world, my lady showed now no haste to quit it; for scarcely had the others vanished than she stopped; began slowly to retrace her way in the direction they had taken. When the narrow route to the petit exil connected with the main aisle, a sudden draft of air extinguished her light; yet still she went on, led by the voices, and a glimmer afar, until reaching a room, low, massive, as if hewn from the solid rock, again she paused. Drawing behind a heavy square pillar, she gazed at the lords and ladies assembled in the forbidding place; listened to a voice that ran on, as if discoursing about some anomalous thing. Again was she cognizant of their questions; a jest from my lord, the Marquis; she saw that several stole forward; peered, and started back, half afraid.

But, at length, they asked about the oubliettes, and, chatting gaily, left. Their garments almost touched the Governor's daughter; lights played about the gigantic pillars, and like will-o'-the-wisps whisked away. Now, staring straight ahead toward the chamber they had vacated, my lady's attention became fixed by a single dot of yellow—a candle placed in a niche by the jailer's assistant. It seemed to fascinate; to draw her forward; across the portals—into the room itself!

How long she stood there in the faint suggestion of light, she did not realize; nor when she approached the iron-barred aperture, and what she first said! Something eager, solicitous, with odd silences between the words, until the impression of a motionless form, and two steady, cynical eyes fastened on her, brought her to an abrupt pause. It was some time before she continued, more coherently, an explanation about her apprehension on account of her father, which had entirely left her when she peered through the window of the guard-house.

"My Father Hates You, and You—"

"You thought me, then, but a common assassin?" a satirical voice interposed.

"My father hates you, and you—"

"My Lady has, perhaps, a standard of her own for judging!"

Unmindful of ironical incredulity, she related how she had been forced to take refuge in the wheel-house; how, when Sanchez had seen her, alarmed she had fled blindly down the passage; waited, then hearing them all coming, at a loss what else to do, had opened the wheel-house door; run into the store-room! What she had seen from there, disconnectedly, also she referred to; his rescue of the others; his remaining behind to bear the brunt—as brave an act as she knew of! Her tone became tremulous.

"Who betrayed me?" His voice, bold and scoffing, interrupted. She answered. It was like speaking to some one in a tomb. "The soldier you bound gave the alarm."

From behind the bars came a mocking laugh.

"You don't believe me?" She caught her breath.

"Believe? Of course."
"You don't!" she said, and clung tighter to the iron grating. "And I can't make you!"

"Why should your Ladyship want to? What does it matter?"

"But it does matter!" wildly. "When your servant accused me that day in the cloister I did not answer nor deny; but now—"

"Your Ladyship would deny?"
"That I betrayed you at Casque? Here? Yes, yes!"

"Or at the wheel-house when you called to warn the soldiers?"
"You were about to—throw yourself over!" she faltered.

"And your Ladyship was apprehensive lest the Black Seigneur should escape?"

"Escape?" she cried. "It was death." "And the alternative? My lady preferred to see the outlaw taken—die like a felon on the gallows!"

"No; no! It was not that."
"What then?" His eyes gleamed bright; her own turned; shrank from them. A moment she strove to answer; could not. Within the black recess a faint light from the flickering candle played up and down. So complete the stillness, so dead the very air, the throbbings of her pulses filled the girl with a suffocating sense of her own vitality.

"I spoke to my father to try to get your cell changed," she at last found herself irrelevantly saying; "but could do nothing."

"I thank your Ladyship! But your Ladyship's friends will be far away. Your Ladyship may miss something amusing!"

"I did not bring them—did not want them to come!"

"No?"

"Perhaps, even, they are not aware you are here?"

"They are not, unless—"
"Elise!" From afar a loud call interrupted; reverberating down the main passage, was caught up here and there. "Elise! Elise!" The whole under-world echoed to the name.

"I promised to meet them at the guard-house," she explained hurriedly. And hardly knowing what she did, put out her hand, through the bars, toward him. In the darkness a hand seized hers; she felt herself drawn; held against the bars. They bruised her shoulder; hurt her face. The chill of the iron sent a shudder through her; though the pain she did not feel; she was cognizant only of a closer view of a figure; the chains from him to the wall; the bare, damp floor—then, of a voice low, tense, that now was speaking:

"Your Ladyship, indeed, found means to punish a presumptuous fellow, who dared displease her. But ma foi! she should have confined her punishment to the offender. Those stripes inflicted on him, my old servant! Think you I knew not it was my Lady's answer to the outlaw, who had the temerity to speak words that offended—"

"You dream that! You imagine that!"

The warmth of his hand seemed to burn hers; her fingers, so closely imprisoned, to throb with the fierce beating of his pulses.

"I do not want you to think—I can't let you think," she began.

"Elise!" The searchers were drawing nearer.

She would have stepped back, but the fingers tightened on her hand.

"They will be here in a moment—"
Still he did not relinquish his hold; the dark face was next to hers; the piercing, relentless eyes studied the agitated brown ones. The latter cleared; met his fully an instant. "Believe!" that imploring wild glance seemed to say. Did his waver for a moment; the harshness and mockery soften on his face?

"Elise!" From but a short distance came the voice of the Marquis. A moment the Black Seigneur's hand gripped my lady's harder with a strength he was unaware of. A slight cry fell from her lips, and at once, almost roughly, he threw her hand from him.

"Bah!" again he laughed mockingly.

"Go to your lover."

Released thus abruptly she wavered, straightened, but continued to stand before the dungeon as if incapable of further motion.

"Elise! Are you there?"
"There!" Cavens and cavs called out.

"There!" gibed voices amid a labyrinth of pillars, and mechanically she caught up the candle; fled.

"Here she is!" Coming toward her quickly out of the darkness, the Marquis uttered a glad exclamation. "We have been looking for you everywhere. Did I not say you should not have attempted to return alone? Mon dieu! you must have been lost!"

MORE ABOUT THE CAMPAIGN OF 1904

Scott Discloses Perkins Aid to Republican Fund.

Washington, July 23.—Senator Scott, who was one of the executive committee under Chairman Cortelyou and in charge of the speakers' bureau, disclosed the fact that George W. Perkins contributed to the Republican campaign of 1904. According to Senator Scott, a contribution of $15,000 was handed to him by Mr. Perkins to be used in the campaign in West Virginia. When he was before the senate committee that is investigating campaign expenditures in the campaign of 1904 and 1908, Chairman Cortelyou testified a few days ago that he was not aware of any contribution that had been made by Mr. Perkins. The testimony given before the committee by Mr. Scott did not contradict anything Mr. Cortelyou had said, because Mr. Scott admitted that the contribution had been delivered to him personally and sent by him direct to the state of West Virginia.

Senator Scott in reply to inquiries said he knew of no contributions made to the campaign from the beef trust, Standard Oil or steel trust, or from anyone connected with them. He reiterated that George B. Cortelyou and Cornelius N. Bliss had made it very clear to everybody connected with the committee that contributions from such sources should not be accepted.

A Trial Will Convince Anyone—The Great Kidney Remedy Never Disappoints.

A few years ago I was troubled with a complication of kidney and stomach ailments and although I tried two or three different doctors, I was unable to obtain a cure. Having heard a great deal about Swamp-Root, I decided to give it a trial and purchased a one-dollar bottle of Mr. Alexander, the druggist. From the beginning I could notice a change for the better, and after taking eight bottles of your medicine, I felt entirely cured and have not had any trouble since.

Had I used Swamp-Root sooner, I would have been a few hundred dollars to the good and saved myself a lot of suffering.

You may use my testimonial any time you wish. Yours very truly,

CHARLES E. HARRIS.

I certify that Charles E. Harris signed the above testimonial in my presence, being first duly sworn to the truth thereof, this 12th day of July, 1909.

A Negress for Whose Capture a Prize of $40,000 Was Offered.

In the August American Magazine appears an article about Harriet Tubman, a negress, now nearly 100 years old, who escaped from slavery before the Civil War, and with a price on her head guided hundreds of negroes by the "Underground Railroad" to Canada. She was appointed a scout in the war and draws a pension. Following is an extract from the article: "No one knows exactly when Harriet Ross was born, but it was on the eastern shore of Maryland and not much less than a hundred years ago. She knows that her mother's mother was brought in a slave-ship from Africa, that her mother was the daughter of a white man, an American, and her father a full-blooded negro.

"Harriet was not large but she was very strong. The most strenuous slave labor was demanded of her—summer and winter she drove oxcarts—she ploughed—with her father she cut timber and drew heavy logs like a patient mule. About the year 1844 she was married to a freedman named Thomas. He proved unworthy and deserted her. She determined to try and escape from slavery and induced her two brothers to go with her. The three started together, but the brothers soon became frightened and turned back. Harriet went on, alone. All through the night she walked and ran—alone. When she reached a place of safety it was morning. She says: 'I looked at my hands to see if I was the same person, now I was free—there was such a glory over everything, the sun came like gold through the trees and over the fields and I felt like I was in heaven!' Not one to enjoy heaven alone was that generous heart. Nineteen times did she return to the land of slavery; and each time brought away to Canada groups of men, women and children, her parents and brothers among them, about three hundred in all. A prize of $40,000 was offered for her capture, but Harriet was never caught. She delights to recall the fact that on all those long and perilous journeys on the 'Underground Railroad' she never lost a passenger! Her belief that she was and is sustained and guided by 'the spirit of de Lord'—is absolute.

"Among the many men of note who trusted and encouraged the intrepid little woman were Wendell Phillips, William Lloyd Garrison, Thomas Garrett, William H. Seward, Emerson Alcott, Dr. Howe and Gerrit Smith. Frederick Douglas wrote of her, 'Excepting John Brown, I know no one who has encountered more perils and hardships to serve our enslaved people.' John Brown said, 'Mr. Phillips, I bring you one of the best and bravest persons on this continent, "General Tubman," as we call her.' He also said, 'She is the most of a man, naturally, that I ever with.' This war-time general now speaks with tender reverence—'John Brown, my dearest friend'—and she whom he called 'the most of a man' is also more of a mother than most women. She founded the maintains a home for colored men and women. She 'dwells in the midst of them, singing.'"

L. P. Byrne has returned from Sparksville where he spent several weeks' vacation. While there he did some lettering upon several monuments and in the Brown cemetery saw the stone at the head of the grave of the late Major Cummins who died in 1810. The monument is over sixty years old.

C. M. Poston and family moved to Mitchell Tuesday where he has been offered a position as engineer at the cement mills. Mr. and Mrs. Poston have many friends here who regret that they are leaving the city.

E. S. Jordan and family are spending the summer at Conneant, O. They made the trip in their automobile.
